THANK GOODNESS
IT'S FORT WORTH!

Greater Fort Worth
Association of REALTORS®

We're lucky.

Aren't we lucky we live in Fort Worth? Things are better here. People in Fort Worth are enjoying relative stability, especially in the housing market.

We're invaluable.

Our neighbors depend on us for an educated, honest perspective on the current housing market. They are also expecting local REALTORS® to be understanding and flexible given the current economic environment.

We're busy.

Yes, there's volatility in the market place, but people are still buying and selling homes. We're actively helping them do both.

We're paying attention.

People in Fort Worth are watching the big economic picture. So are we. We are all concerned, but we're fortunate to be a part of this local community.

We're dedicated.

The current mood in the housing market consists of broad interest, but also anxiety. We get it. We live here, too. We're here to help in difficult markets as well as in prosperous ones.

Why TGIFW?

Well, you may have noticed a good deal of negative news regarding the national economy lately. Luckily, things in Texas aren't as bad as the rest of the country, and in Fort Worth, they're actually pretty good. We want to repeat that message and say that while the situation may be very hard elsewhere, here we can say "Thank Goodness It's Fort Worth!"
